DEDICATION

*This book is dedicated to all the deceased members of our community.
May they Rest in Peace.*

INTRODUCTION

This book contains approximately 350 Memorial Inscriptions which are located at Ballycoog and Ballintemple Cemeteries. There are many more in Ballintemple and in the Old Cemetery in Ballycoog which are illegible or located in inaccessible areas; there are also many mounds and unmarked graves and these are marked with an "X" on the Ground Plan for Old Ballycoog Cemetery. Our apologies if the numbering of graves on the ground plans is difficult to follow!

Reference is also made to Brian Cantwell regarding certain memorials. Brian Cantwell undertook a survey of many cemeteries in Co Wicklow in the 1970's. He normally recorded inscriptions not later than 1880, unless the memorial included an earlier date. His record is extraordinary, but is not always complete. Ballycoog and Ballintemple cemeteries were included in his survey.

These three cemeteries maintain the ancient Christian custom of interring the deceased person facing the rising sun in the East – a symbolic way of expressing faith in Resurrection from the dead – the rising Son of God. The symbol of the Cross is likewise an expression of faith, as is the use, for example, of the monogram IHS (the first three letters of the name Jesus in Greek), RIP (Requiescat In Pace – may he/she rest in peace).

We have tried to present as complete a record as possible, but it is inevitable that there are omissions and errors. Many inscriptions are difficult to read. Many graves are unmarked, or are marked by a stone without an inscription. In recent centuries, the practice of erecting a memorial with inscription seems to date from the late 1600s, and grew then in popularity. The index to each cemetery includes all names on the memorials; this includes the person who erected the memorial, whether or not that person is buried in that grave. Spelling of names was not standardised, and can vary within the same family (even in our own time).

Our thanks to those who encouraged this project; to those who supplied information; and to those who went around checking the inscriptions with dedication.

The old Ballintemple Church

*This served the community before the present St Kevin's Church, which was built in 1816.
There is record of a priest, Cornelius O Leaglor, serving here in 1448.*

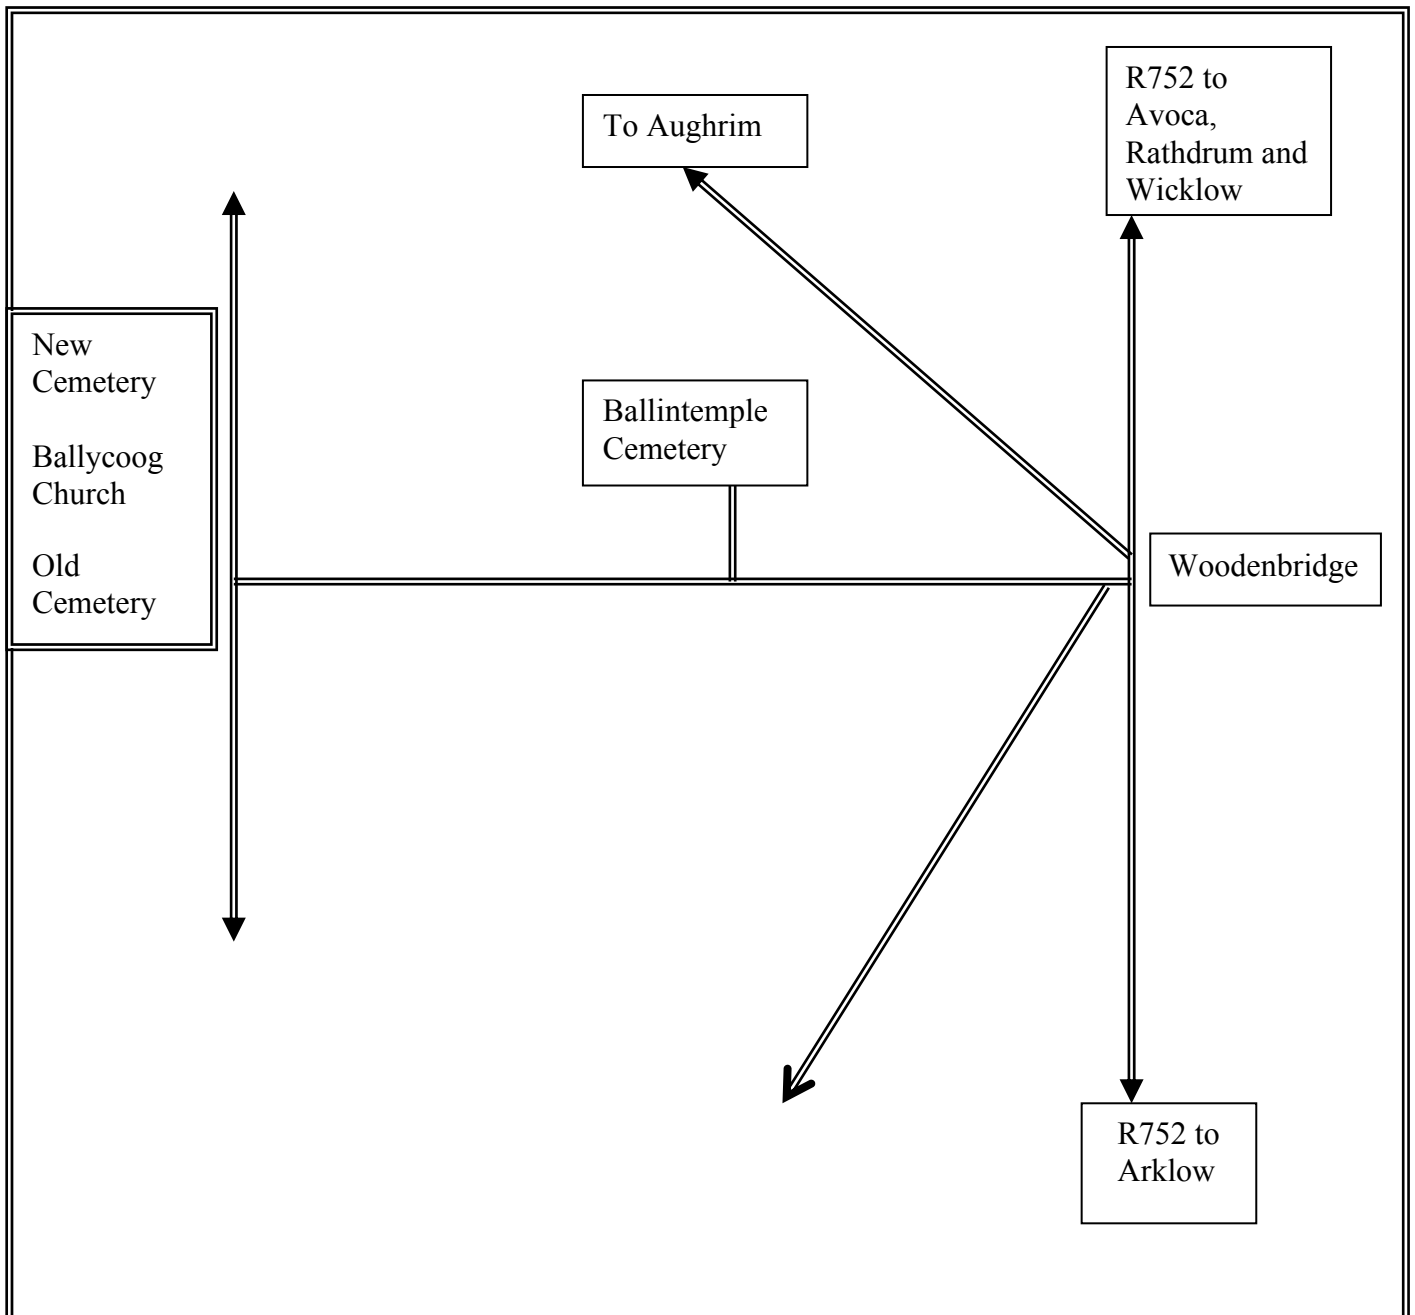

Above is part of the stone for the Kinsleys in Ballintemple Cemetery (No. 46 in the Ballintemple record), carved by Dennis Cullen of Monaseed, Co Wexford, well-known for his work which was done mainly between 1765 and 1785. The carving shows a central depiction of the crucifixion of Jesus on a decorated cross with head surrounded by light, and with the inscription INRI (Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews) above his head. Above on either side are two figures of angels, representing support from God; another angel to the left of the cross is seated and is playing a harp. On the right is Mary, the mother of Jesus, wearing a crown and holding a rosary. Three soldiers, one on horseback, are also shown. Below is the inscription IHS, the first three letters of the name of Jesus in Greek. Below this are the Latin words CONSUMATUM EST (it is accomplished), words of Jesus in chapter 19, verse 30 of St John's gospel.

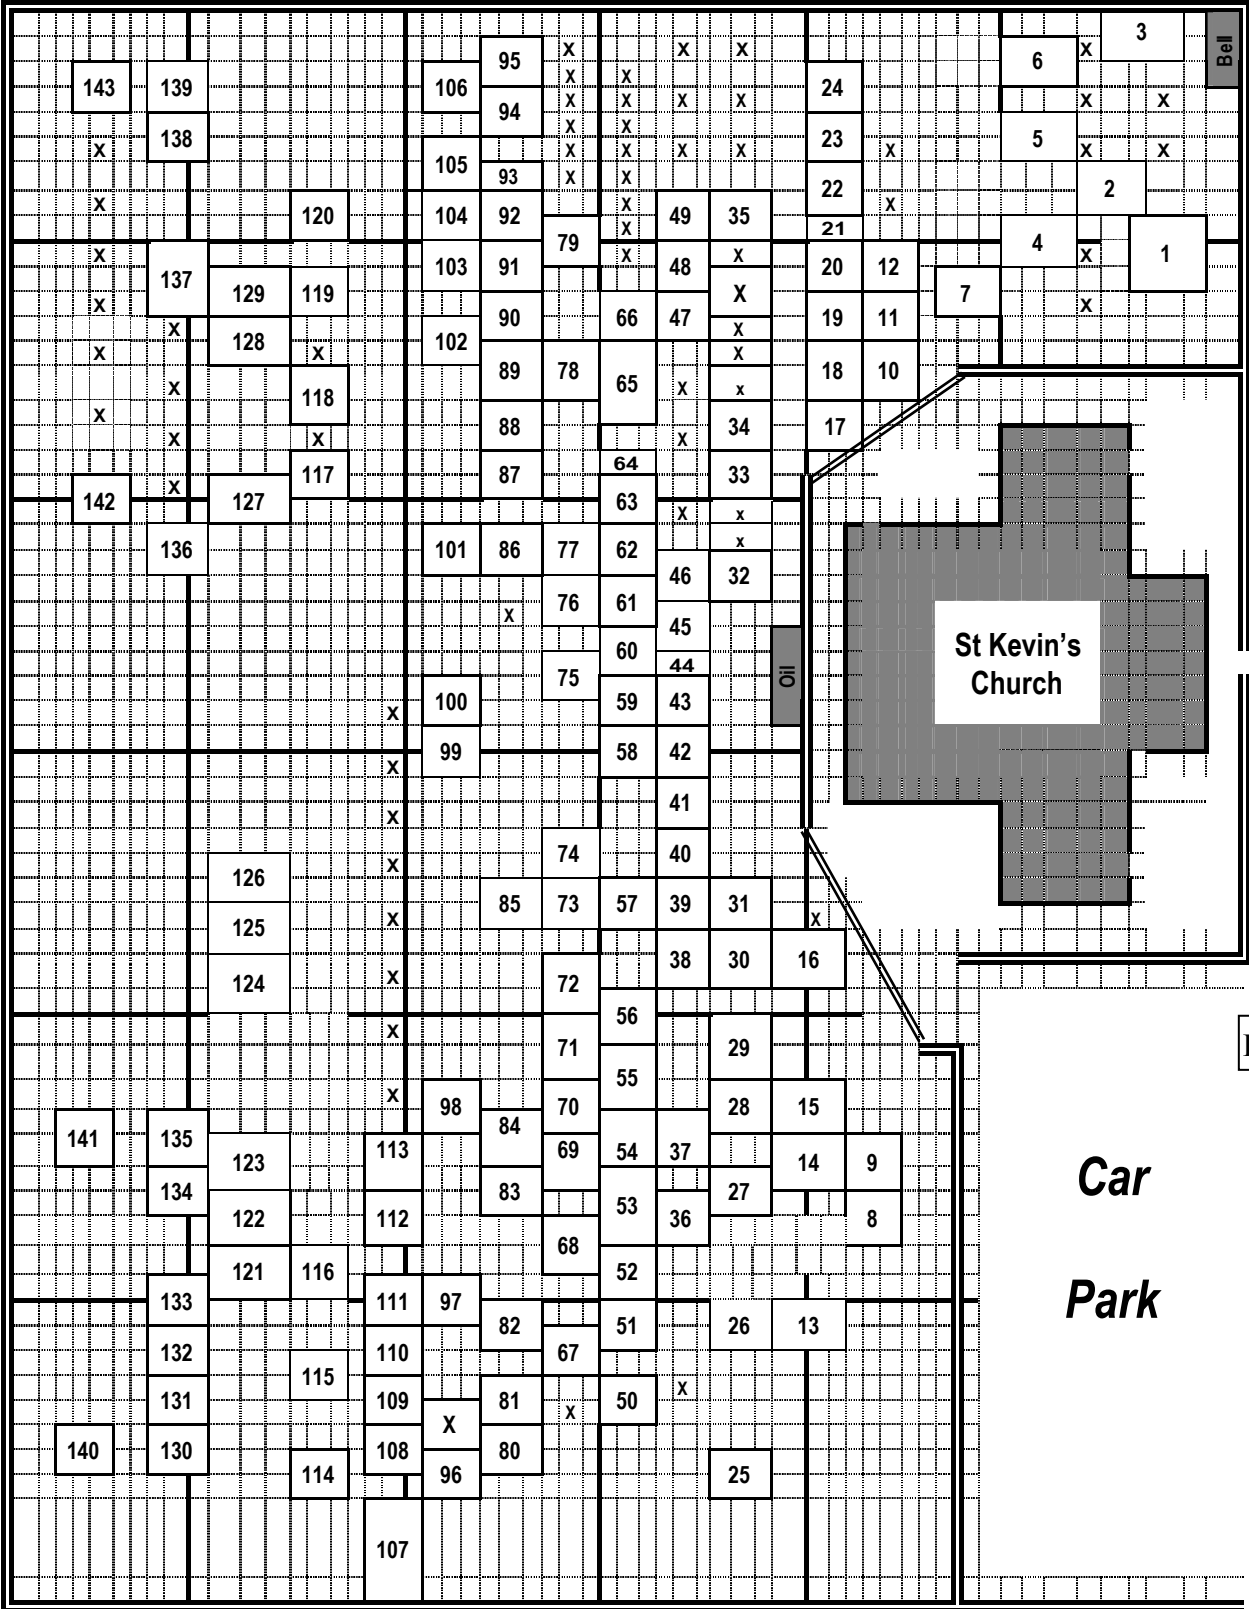

More information on Dennis Cullen is given by Eoin Grogan in the journal Wicklow Archaeology and History Volume 1 (1998). Studies of Irish tombstones of the 18th century are in the Journal of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland, in the years 1943 to 1948, and in 1954, by Ada Longfield. She also published Some Irish Churchyard Sculpture in 1974.

There are 16 headstones from the 1700s in Ballintemple. The oldest of these is No. 52: Margaret McDanill, from 1737.
